DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Claims 24-27 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected species, there being no allowable generic or linking claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 11, 12 and 22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Brault et al. (5, 837,375).

Brault teaches an ink jet recording element and a process for forming the element. The element comprises (Fig. 3B) an opaque backing (22), a transparent (therefore translucent) image receiving layer (16) and a transparent medium (14). Looking at Figs. 1 and 2, it can be seen that an image (18) is printed onto the ink receiving layer and then the backing (22) is applied over the printed image, in order to bond to the ink receiving layer (col. 8:5-8).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 21 and 23 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Brault et al. (5,837,375) in view of Aylward et al. (5,998,119).

Brault et al. teaches the claimed invention with the exception of the ink receiving layer is a sol-gel containing titania particles.

Brault et al teaches that the ink receiving layer may contain a variety of different particulate materials (col. 6:59-67 and col. 7:1-10). Aylward et al. teaches an ink jet imaging element having a porous ink receiver. The ink receiver may contain particulate materials such as, silica, calcium carbonate clay, talc, zeolites, titanium dioxide, sol-gels and mixtures thereof (col. 4:36-47). Thus, all of these materials are shown to be art recognized equivalents for their use in an ink receiving layer. Because these materials were art recognized equivalents at the time the invention was made, one of ordinary skill in the ink jet art would have found it obvious to have substituted a sol-gel mixed with titanium dioxide for any of the particulate materials disclosed in Brault et al, in order to aid in enhancing the smoothness of the ink receptive layer.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 03/31/04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

The Examiner has considered the Applicant's arguments and does not find them persuasive. In this case, the question that must be asked is, whether the Applicant has provided a clear definition is the specification that is contrary to the plain mean of the term "translucent." It is the Examiner's position that the Applicant has not provided such a definition. The Specification states that the ink receiving layer is "prepared to be translucent or 'milky' in appearance." The Specification does not specifically limit the term "translucent" to meaning only "milky" in appearance. Thus, the Specification has not specifically defined "translucent" and the plain meaning of the term applies.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
